THE IMPACT OF YOUR GENEROSITY

I had the honor of joining the Foundation team in October 2025 as the new Chief Development Officer. Prior to that, I served in fundraising leadership across higher education and healthcare. Along the way, I've built high-performing advancement teams, led multimillion-dollar campaigns, and helped raise more than $300 million for healthcare initiatives.

Throughout my career, I have seen the extraordinary difference philanthropy can make in the lives of children and families. It creates hope, supports healing, and helps children safely make the journey from hospital to home. I entered this role excited to bring my experience and passion to partner with Ranken Jordan's supporters, and after my first year, I am even more inspired by what we can accomplish together.

This year, together, we raised more than $8 million, making it the most successful fundraising year in Ranken Jordan's history. While this achievement is remarkable, what excites me most is what it means for the children and families we serve. Your generosity provides real life-changing solutions with lasting impacts every day.

Because of your support, Ranken Jordan is able to:

- Expand Care Beyond the Bedside® programming, including therapeutic art and music therapy opportunities that inspire healing through creativity and connection.
- Strengthen support for caregivers through enhanced care cart offerings, advanced simulation-based training, and new family-focused programs such as Going PLAYces.
- Help children live, grow, and thrive through continued investment in the Optimization Zone, which addresses developmental delays associated with long-term hospitalization and supports children in reaching important milestones.

These are just a few examples of the impact your generosity makes possible. Every gift helps children experience greater joy, independence, and opportunity while giving families the support they need to navigate complex medical challenges.

I invite you to explore this year's Impact Report and see the transformative difference your partnership is making in the lives of patients and families at Ranken Jordan. Thank you for believing in our mission and helping children live their best lives.

Sincerely,

Orrie Covert
Chief Development Officer

Discovering Strength Beyond the Bedside

“DEPRESSION IS A REAL THING, SO PAINTING GIVES ME AN OUTLET.”

There are no “typical” patients at Ranken Jordan. Every child arrives with complex medical needs and a care plan tailored to help them heal.

But recovery is about more than becoming medically ready to go home. It is also about helping children and families envision what life will look like after discharge. What will fill their days? What will bring them joy? How will they stay connected to friends, school, and the activities they love?

That is why our philosophy of Care Beyond the Bedside® encourages patients to be up and out of their rooms, actively engaged and connected with others. We know these experiences improve outcomes and help children discover what is possible beyond the hospital.

This year, Ranken Jordan welcomed a patient who embraced Care Beyond the Bedside and reminded everyone of the importance of connecting to a new passion.

Seventeen-year-old Jatayvion “JT” Thomas arrived at Ranken Jordan recovering from a devastating accident that left him a quadriplegic. A standout football player, JT suddenly faced life without the use of his arms or legs. He came to Ranken Jordan to recover from his injuries and to develop new skills for his life ahead.

Ranken Jordan's recreational therapists introduced JT to therapeutic art as an outlet to express himself and his feelings. Art teacher Julie Villhard first began painting with JT using a grid technique she had developed with other patients who were unable to use their limbs. JT would tell Julie what color to use and which square to place it in on the grid. Julie quickly recognized JT's artistic talent and his remarkable ability to visualize an entire composition before a single brushstroke was made. As she complimented his talent for putting pictures together, Sean Wenos, JT's recreational therapist, suggested that JT try holding a paintbrush in his mouth to do his own painting.

JT's first response was a laugh and a defiant "no." But Julie offered to try it with him, and JT's attitude shifted to "it can't hurt to try it."

Although his first tries were tentative, JT learned how to gain control of the paintbrush with his teeth, and soon he began composing amazing paintings that caught the eye of everyone who passed.

For JT, painting became much more than a hobby. It became an outlet, a source of confidence, and a way to focus on what was possible rather than what had been lost.

"It takes your head away from things," he said. "You're more focused on the painting than what's going on around you."

At 17, when navigating a life-altering injury, that kind of focus matters.

"Going through an injury at 17 years old is tough," he says. "Depression is a real thing, so painting gives me an outlet."

Painting also became a way for JT to connect with friends. Although he lives several hours from Ranken Jordan, friends regularly visited on weekends. With a little encouragement, they tried mouth painting themselves. There was laughter, friendly competition, and a sense of normalcy. For a while, the focus wasn't on life before the accident. It was on enjoying the moment together.

Painting has also opened new possibilities for JT's future. His success with painting has gone beyond the hospital walls. This spring he had a piece chosen for the St. Louis Art Museum's Young Artist exhibit. He has sold multiple paintings, with much of the money going to charity and some going to his art setup and supplies at home.

JT transitioned home this spring and continues to navigate life after his injury with the support of his family, friends, and community. While his future may look different than he once imagined, he carries with him a new passion, a new creative outlet, and a renewed sense of possibility.

Thanks to experiences that extend beyond the bedside, JT left Ranken Jordan not only prepared for life at home, but excited about what comes next.

Stories like JT's demonstrate how Care Beyond the Bedside® helps patients discover new strengths, build confidence, and envision a future beyond their diagnosis.

Therapeutic art is supported by the Arthur and Helen Baer Charitable Foundation.

Care Beyond the Bedside®

is a core part of healing at Ranken Jordan Pediatric Bridge Hospital. By getting kids out of their hospital rooms and using the power of play, creativity, and meaningful experiences, we help patients achieve better health outcomes and prepare for life beyond the hospital. Thanks to generous donor support, we continue to invest in and expand Care Beyond the Bedside programming, creating new opportunities for patients and families to heal, learn, and thrive.

LET'S PLAY SESSIONS

We believe kids heal best when they have time to get out of their rooms to play and just be kids. We also know that playing with medically complex children can sometimes feel intimidating for caregivers, volunteers, and even staff. Our patients often use specialized equipment to communicate, express themselves, and experience the world in unique ways. And they love to play!

"We had so many volunteers and parents ready to play with kids, but because of our patients' complexities, the caregivers would sit on the floor with a child and not know what to do next," said Danielle McKay, Director of Therapy Services at Ranken Jordan.

That's why we launched "Let's Play," a program to educate our staff, volunteers, and caregivers on how to have safe, quality playtime with our patients. These sessions are led by our therapy team and demonstrate positioning, toy selection, communication, and neurodiversity-affirming play strategies to maximize play sessions.

Sessions include guidance on positioning the child, especially if they can't stand or walk on their own, as well as tips for playing with neurodiverse children. Many of our patients have Autism, ADHD, brain injuries, or other conditions that may influence how they interact with toys and activities. Let's Play helps participants recognize and support different styles of play through neurodiversity-affirming strategies that celebrate each child's strengths.

Following our initial Let's Play session, patients were more engaged during play activities, and volunteers reported feeling significantly more confident interacting with children. Because of the positive response, the program will now be offered three times each year.

Effective play is at the heart of Care Beyond the Bedside.® When children are supported in meaningful play experiences, they build skills, reach developmental milestones, connect with others, and experience the joy that is so essential to healing. After all, every child deserves the opportunity to play, learn, grow, and thrive.

TRACHS IN THE POOL

Swimming is one of childhood's greatest joys, and at Ranken Jordan it can also be a powerful therapeutic tool. Aquatic therapy combines this joy with a supportive therapeutic environment that helps patients build strength, balance, and coordination. Ranken Jordan's heated pool is the only designated pediatric aquatic therapy pool in the region. Both inpatient and outpatient therapy patients use the pool. This unique offering attracts many outpatient families to Ranken Jordan because they have heard about aquatic therapy and patients are comfortable in the water or they are looking for a more motivating place for them to do their therapy.

Another way Ranken Jordan's aquatic therapy program stands apart is its ability to safely provide aquatic therapy for select patients with a tracheostomy. Because a tracheostomy creates a direct airway opening, aquatic therapy requires extensive planning and specialized safety precautions. Through careful research, training, and collaboration, Ranken Jordan's team developed protocols that allow eligible patients to safely experience the benefits of the pool.

This innovative therapy milestone was first implemented at Ranken Jordan for inpatients in 2023. It was made possible through extensive planning, research, and the dedication of team members committed to both patient safety and playful healing.

But it did not take long for an inpatient family transitioning to outpatient care to request additional aquatic therapy as they continued their care from home. Building on the work the team had previously done, outpatient physical therapist Erin Clow took the lead on providing additional training to other therapists and technicians to ensure they could offer this option to this family and additional outpatient families. >

Erin shares, “As I did more focused education on taking patients with a tracheostomy into the pool, I realized how beneficial it could be for many patients. Many patients with a trach are already struggling with balance and aquatic therapy is very helpful for learning to control their balance.”

Some of the additional care and precautions that therapists take when working with a patient who has a trach include always having two staff in the pool to ensure that the patient does not go lower than chest deep in the water. This is to alleviate the risk of water getting into the trach. There is also a third staff member on the pool deck to initiate any emergency response if needed. An additional precaution to prevent water getting into the trach is that when a patient with a trach is in the pool, no other patient can be in the pool. Generally, we can have up to three patients in the pool, but this precaution is in place to eliminate any additional splashes.

Other outpatients have utilized this new offering, but many still do not know about it. Erin hopes to expand it to more families as more patients who are medically ready for it are identified. Erin says, “I love the water, and have really seen the benefit of aquatic therapy for our patients. It often motivates patients and they are able to do more in the water. And being in the pool is a life experience and I love being able to share that with patients and families and letting them see what is possible.”

EXPANDED ACCESS TO ART AND MUSIC THERAPY

Additional investment from the Arthur and Helen Baer Charitable Foundation has expanded access to therapeutic art experiences for our patients. The addition of a second part-time art teacher has significantly increased our capacity, allowing us to offer more classes, including evenings and weekends, as well as additional individualized art sessions.

Together, our art teachers collaborate to create engaging projects and specialized classes tailored to the unique needs of patients across all ages.

Our music therapy offerings have also grown through sponsorship from the Ollie Hinkle Heart Foundation. In addition to individual sessions with Ranken Jordan Music Therapist Mary Hitchcock-Reinhart, patients now have access to weekly group music therapy sessions led by Christy Merrill Music Therapy.

Whether through painting, songwriting, playing instruments, or simply sharing an experience with peers, art and music therapy provide patients with opportunities to express themselves, build confidence, connect with others, and experience joy during their healing journey.

CAREGIVER TRAINING HELPS PATIENTS AND FAMILIES LIVE THEIR BEST LIFE

An important part of Care Beyond the Bedside® is helping patients and caregivers envision what life can look like at home. Watching your child splash and play during aquatic therapy shows that trips to the pool are possible. Spending time on the playground at Ranken Jordan is a reminder that family outings and playtime can continue after discharge. We don't want patients to return home and become confined to their bed. We want them and their families to thrive, participate in their communities, and live their best lives.

Preparing families for this transition means ensuring caregivers have both the skills and confidence needed to care for their children at home. Every caregiver at Ranken Jordan completes individualized training tailored to their child's unique needs.

Five years ago, we expanded our training program with the addition of a toddler-sized, high-fidelity simulation mannequin. High-fidelity mannequins go far beyond standard CPR mannequins. They replicate human anatomy and respond dynamically to interventions with features such as breathing, variable heart rates, blood pressure changes, and palpable pulses. These lifelike simulations allow caregivers and staff to safely practice real-world scenarios, building the expertise and confidence needed to respond to a patient's needs.

This year, with support from the Sunnen Foundation, we added an adult-sized high-fidelity simulation mannequin to our training program. This expansion allows caregivers to practice with a mannequin that more closely matches their child's size, creating a more realistic learning experience and increasing confidence before the transition home. The result is families who feel better prepared to care for their children and help them thrive beyond the hospital.

RANKEN JORDAN GOING PLAYCES PROGRAMMING FOR FAMILIES

At Ranken Jordan Pediatric Bridge Hospital, supporting caregivers and families is an integral part of the care every patient receives. We know that returning home and living your best life is easier when caregivers have the support they need to care for the entire family, including themselves. The best outcomes happen when the whole family is supported.

Families of medically complex children often coordinate medications, therapies, appointments, equipment, and daily care needs. Once a child leaves the hospital, these responsibilities become a 24-hour-a-day commitment. The demands of caregiving can leave little time for parents to connect with others, focus on their own well-being, or spend dedicated time with siblings and other family members. >

Having opportunities to connect with other caregivers who understand the challenges of raising a child with complex medical needs can be invaluable. Time to focus on personal responsibilities, relationships, or self-care can also play an important role in maintaining a family's overall well-being.

To support these families, Ranken Jordan partnered with the June Jessee Foundation to offer "Going PLAYces," caregiver connection events to provide parents an opportunity to connect with other caregivers or simply take time to do what they need to do while their medically complex children and siblings participate in activities under the supervision of experienced Ranken Jordan staff.

At Going PLAYces events, children enjoy a variety of activities designed to spark creativity, imagination, and fun. From art projects and pretend play in our OZ classrooms to board games, music, and even karaoke, participants enjoy experiences that build confidence, encourage social connections, and create lasting memories.

Since launching in August 2025, donor-supported Going PLAYces events have welcomed 61 participants, creating opportunities for all family members to connect, build relationships, and enjoy meaningful experiences together.

Fully funded through donor support, Going PLAYces events are an extension of Ranken Jordan's Care Care Beyond the Bedside® philosophy. For families navigating the challenges of medical complexity, these events offer something powerful: connection, confidence, and the reminder that they are not alone. By helping families engage with their community, strengthen relationships, and experience joy together, Going Playces events demonstrate that healing extends beyond the hospital walls and into everyday life.

Every child's path to healing is different. Through Care Beyond the Bedside,® patients discover new passions, build confidence, strengthen skills, connect with others, and envision a future beyond their diagnosis. Thanks to donor support, Ranken Jordan continues to create experiences that help children not only recover, but truly thrive.

CELEBRATING 10,000 SESSIONS OF OZ!

177 HOURS IN OZ, NOW AT HOME

On May 12, 2026, Ranken Jordan's Optimization Zone (OZ) reached an exciting milestone by hosting its 10,000th patient session.

Each OZ class attendance counts as one session, meaning that since the program launched in February 2022, children ages 0 to 5 have participated in 10,000 OZ experiences designed to promote learning, play, and development beyond the bedside.

Most OZ sessions last approximately 90 minutes, creating meaningful opportunities for engagement and growth. To date, OZ has served 276 unique patients and provided more than 12,000 hours of Care Beyond the Bedside®.

Since OZ's launch, the impact on patient experiences has been remarkable. Through a series of four time-motion studies conducted over five years, Ranken Jordan has measured how children spend their time during hospitalization. Compared with data collected before OZ began, the most recent study, completed in 2025, found that time spent outside the hospital room increased by 151%, time spent interacting through play increased by 111%, and time spent with other patients increased by 336%.

These outcomes demonstrate how OZ is transforming the patient experience and helping Ranken Jordan reimagine early childhood care, ensuring that children have more opportunities to learn, play, connect, and thrive during their hospital stay.

OZ is entirely funded by donor support.

EXPANDING OUR IMPACT BEYOND HOSPITAL WALLS

Nick Holekamp, MD stepped into a new leadership role in October 2025 as Ranken Jordan's Chief Health Transformation Officer. It is a strategic priority at Ranken Jordan to share our unique care model, Care Beyond the Bedside.® At Ranken Jordan, we know that getting kids out of their hospital rooms and engaging them through play, movement, family connection, and meaningful experiences leads to better outcomes. We believe so strongly in this approach that we are committed not only to practicing it, but also to helping other healthcare organizations learn from it and adopt similar approaches for the children they serve.

As Chief Health Transformation Officer, Dr. Nick works with healthcare leaders, researchers, and clinicians to advance innovative models of care for children with complex medical needs.

A key part of this effort is Ranken Jordan's research program, launched at the end of 2024. While hospitals our size are not typically known for maintaining a dedicated research department, we recognized the importance of building scientific evidence around Care Beyond the Bedside.® By conducting and publishing research, we can objectively demonstrate the impact of our approach and share those findings with the broader healthcare community.

To support this work, Ranken Jordan hired its first full-time Research Director, Patrick Hogan, MPH. Together, the team has already published research in two peer-reviewed journals, Children and the Journal of Pediatrics: Clinical Practice.

Beyond research, Dr. Nick and the team are sharing Ranken Jordan's innovations through presentations at medical conferences, educational programs, and local and national media opportunities. Recent topics have included:

- Our unique approach to measuring development in hospitalized children with medical complexity,
- How we balance infection prevention and play in our setting,
- Our team's approach to tube dislodgements, a common but serious issue in pediatric hospitals,
- Our multidisciplinary approach to gastrointestinal disorders including encopresis and functional constipation, and
- Moving beyond family-centered care and reuniting hospitalized children with their families.

"I couldn't be prouder of what our team is doing and how we're working to drive transformative change for children with complex medical needs," Dr. Nick said. "When you give to Ranken Jordan, you are supporting more than the families we serve at our hospital. You are also supporting our efforts to help every child with complex medical needs live their best life."

Our research is supported by The Quatrano Family Fund for Research and Publications, created from a generous gift by the late Dr. Ralph Quatrano, dean emeritus of Washington University and accomplished biology researcher, and his wife Lee Anne, a retired learning disability specialist.

"ENGAGING THROUGH PLAY, MOVEMENT, FAMILY CONNECTION, AND MEANINGFUL EXPERIENCES LEADS TO BETTER OUTCOMES."

The Power of $8 MILLION

8 WAYS $8 MILLION CHANGED LIVES

Helping Children Learn, Grow, and Thrive
Since its launch in 2022, the Optimization Zone (OZ) has helped children overcome developmental delays associated with long-term hospitalization. Over four years, OZ has provided 10,460 sessions, delivered 12,971 hours of early childhood development instruction, and served 276 participants, helping children build critical skills and connect with peers.

Training Caregivers with Advanced Technology
Thanks to support from the Sunnen Foundation, Ranken Jordan purchased a new adult-sized high-fidelity simulation mannequin. Alongside our toddler mannequin, these lifelike training tools can breathe, pulse and display measurable vital signs offering dynamic feedback to interventions so that caregivers and medical staff can gain hands-on experience and build confidence caring for children with complex medical needs.

Enhancing Patient Transportation
Three new vans were funded to strengthen our transportation fleet. Inspired by a personal family connection, Barb and Jon Jansky funded one of the vans and inspired other donors to invest as well. These essential resources help ensure patients can safely travel to and from Ranken Jordan whenever specialized transportation is needed.

Supporting the Whole Family Through "Going Playces" Events
Thanks to donor support and a partnership with the June Jessee Foundation, Ranken Jordan launched a new program that gives medically complex children and their siblings an opportunity for fun, friendship, and adventure while providing caregivers time to connect with peers, recharge, and focus on their own well-being.

Expanding Adventure ReimaginED
With continued support from the Costigan family, Adventure ReimaginED, our outpatient therapy camp, has grown to serve 106 campers through week-long winter and summer sessions. Through therapeutic play, children experience one of the greatest joys of childhood: going to camp.

Growing Music Therapy
New funding expanded music therapy offerings, offering group music therapy session allowing patients more opportunities to engage with music therapy and achieve their therapeutic goals.

Inspiring Creativity Through Art
With additional funding from the Arthur & Helen Baer Charitable Foundation, Ranken Jordan added a second art teacher, expanding access to one of the hospital's most vibrant hubs of creativity, expression, and joy.

Caring For Caregivers
Donor support strengthened programs designed for parents and caregivers. Expanded Care Cart offerings now provide personal care items, snacks, treats, and activities, while regular caregiver dinners create opportunities for nourishment, connection, and community.

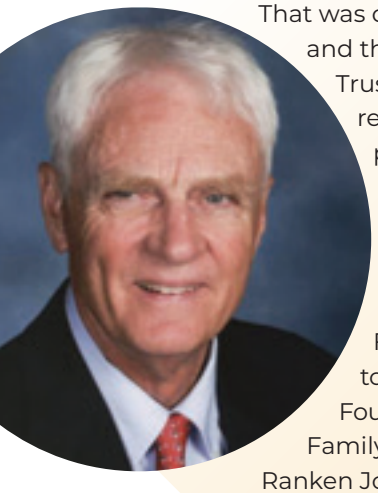

MARY RANKEN JORDAN SERVICE TO CHILDREN AWARD WINNERS

Edward & Carol Costigan, Jr. & and The Guth Foundation

Partnership Built on Trust, Service, and Belief

For many foundations, the relationship with the organizations they support begins with paperwork. Grant applications, reports, and funding requests create a professional partnership rooted in stewardship and accountability. Yet the strongest philanthropic relationships often grow beyond the paper, becoming rooted in personal connection, shared values, and a deep belief in a mission.

That was certainly the case for Ed Costigan and the Guth Foundation Charitable Trust. What began as a funding relationship evolved into a lasting partnership that has helped shape the future of Ranken Jordan Pediatric Bridge Hospital and continues today through the generosity of the Costigan family.

For their extraordinary commitment to children and families, the Guth Foundation and the Edward J. Costigan Family are being honored with the Mary Ranken Jordan Service to Children Award. The award recognizes individuals and organizations who selflessly serve Ranken Jordan and the St. Louis community and who exemplify the vision established by our founder, Mary Ranken Jordan.

A Family Tradition of Giving

For the Costigan family, philanthropy was never viewed as something extraordinary. It was simply part of everyday life.

Supporting schools, churches, and community organizations was woven naturally into family life. Giving was not something discussed at length. It was quietly demonstrated through action.

“Ed believed helping others was just what you were supposed to do,” his family recalls. That same spirit of service influenced every part of the family’s life, from volunteerism to charitable giving.

His wife, Carol Costigan, and daughter, Katie Heyel, even dedicated time to training therapy dogs that visited schools and cancer centers throughout the St. Louis region. In fact, one of those visits led Carol to her first introduction to Ranken Jordan, when she accompanied a friend and her therapy dog to the hospital.

From Funder to Champion

Since 2003, the Guth Foundation has invested in education, children’s services, and human services organizations throughout the region. Under the leadership of trustees Ed Costigan and his sister, Sally Coleman, Ranken Jordan became one of the foundation's valued partners supporting annual operations, campaigns, and major initiatives.

Over the years, the foundation's investment grew alongside the hospital.

A landmark $1 million gift helped support Ranken Jordan's expansion project, reinforcing the foundation's confidence in the hospital's vision and future. As the capital campaign ended, the Guth Foundation began investing in equipment that the hospital needed including specialized hospital beds, cough assist machines, smart lifts, and wheelchairs.

As the years passed, Ed became increasingly engaged with the work happening inside the hospital. He visited often to see how foundation-funded equipment and technology were being used and to witness firsthand how children benefited from those investments.

Those visits made a deep impact on him.

What began as oversight and stewardship evolved into genuine passion for the mission. Ed developed a deep appreciation for the creativity, innovation, and determination he saw throughout the hospital.

"He became an ambassador for Ranken Jordan," his family says. "He loved children. And he loved being able to help them. He was excited about sharing what was happening here and the difference it was making for children."

The Patient Who Captured His Heart

One encounter in particular left a lasting impression.

During a visit to observe the Bioness Integrated Therapy System (BITS), a piece of foundation-funded technology, Ed met a young patient named Loralei. The interactive therapy system allows physical, occupational, and speech therapists to personalize activities and games that help children achieve therapeutic goals. The technology had been made possible through support from the Guth Foundation.

Loralei, who was born with spina bifida, had been receiving outpatient therapy at Ranken Jordan since infancy. When Ed observed her therapy session, he was immediately struck by her enthusiasm, determination, and confidence.

At the end of the session, he offered her $20 and asked what she planned to do with it.

"I'm putting it toward my college fund," she replied.

The answer delighted him.

Having spent six decades in the finance industry, Ed understood the value of planning ahead and investing in the future. He was amazed to hear such a thoughtful response from a young child. >

Ed never forgot that moment. Here was a young girl who had faced significant challenges yet remained completely focused on her future. He soon found himself sharing Loralei's story whenever he talked about Ranken Jordan and the impact the hospital was making in children's lives.

Carrying Forward a Legacy

When Ed Costigan passed away in September 2024, his family wanted to honor both his life and his passion for helping children.

His wife, Carol, and daughters, Sara McLellan, Katie Heyel, and Carrie Bean reached out to Ranken Jordan to explore meaningful ways to continue his legacy. Ed had included a bequest for Ranken Jordan in his estate plan and memorial gifts made in Ed's honor would provide the foundation for a new idea that was taking shape within the hospital's outpatient therapy program.

Erica Pfeiffer, Outpatient Therapy Manager, envisioned an outpatient camp experience that would combine therapeutic goals with fun, social engagement. Sessions would include options like dance and movement, adaptive gaming, AAC (augmentative alternative communication) devices, and aquatics.

The idea resonated immediately with the Costigan family.

With support from gifts made in Ed's memory, Adventure ReimaginED became a reality.

The camp brings together children with complex medical needs and their siblings for therapy-based activities, social programming, and recreational experiences designed to promote growth, confidence, and connection. What began as a single camp experience has grown into two sessions each year, with both winter and summer camps providing opportunities for children and families to learn, connect, and thrive. Since its launch, families have reported meaningful progress and overwhelmingly positive experiences.

Sara has had the opportunity to visit Ranken Jordan when camp is in session. She even had the opportunity to watch Loralei, the patient that made such an impression on Ed, perform with the dance camp. "Seeing the happy kids, the costumes, it just made me think of camp stories and how it was a perfect way to remember Dad," Sara says. "He loved camp. He loved children, and he loved seeing them have fun. Watching those kids enjoy themselves would have made him so happy."

The family's commitment did not end with the launch of Adventure ReimaginED. Carol continues to support the camp through an annual gift and has also included Ranken Jordan in her estate plans, helping ensure that future generations of children and families will benefit from innovative programs like Adventure ReimaginED. Through her ongoing generosity and legacy commitment, the opportunities created in Ed's memory will continue to have a lasting impact for years to come.

Inspiring Others Through Service

The Guth Foundation Charitable Trust and the Costigan family exemplify the spirit of the Mary Ranken Jordan Service to Children Award. Their generosity has provided critical resources, innovative technology, therapeutic opportunities, and lasting support for children with complex medical needs. More importantly, they have demonstrated how philanthropy can evolve from financial support into a deeply personal commitment to changing lives.

Through the Guth Foundation's partnership, Ed's enthusiastic advocacy, and the Costigan family's commitment to carrying forward his vision, children and families will continue to experience the opportunities, joy, and possibilities that meant so much to him.

DONOR HONOR ROLL

Endowment Giving

Ranken Jordan's Endowment provides a lasting source of support for the hospital's mission, helping ensure the resources needed to meet today's challenges and tomorrow's opportunities. Endowment funds strengthen the hospital's ability to grow, innovate, attract and retain exceptional staff, and respond to unexpected needs.

Because only a portion of the investment earnings is distributed annually, the principal remains intact, creating a permanent source of support that benefits generations of children and families.

Donors may contribute to an existing endowment fund or establish a named endowment fund with a gift of $100,000 or more. Named funds allow donors to create a lasting legacy while supporting an area of care that is especially meaningful to them.

Ranken Jordan is deeply grateful to The Saigh Foundation, whose visionary gift established the hospital's Endowment in 2018.

Beyond Endowment Fund

This fund sustains the programs, innovation, and family-centered support that make Ranken Jordan's model of care truly unique. By contributing to the Beyond Endowment Fund, donors create a lasting legacy that supports Care Beyond the Bedside® and helps medically complex children learn, grow, and heal for generations.

- Loretta B. and John A. Farrell Connect with Nature Fund
- Kris and Brian Hogan Family Fund
- Richard P. Riney Family Foundation Playdates Fund
- Richard P. Riney Family Foundation Playgarden Fund
- The Rich and June Vandegrift Fund
- The Marci Joy Zimmerman Fund

Optimization Zone (OZ) Endowment Fund

The OZ Endowment Fund supports our early childhood development program, advancing the neurodevelopment of young patients during critical early years. It provides lasting support for staff, specialized curriculum, materials, and resources that foster growth in social and communication skills—helping children build confidence and prepare for life beyond the hospital.

- Andrew Family OZ Fund
- Anne Knight Davidson OZ Fund
- John and Kate Rhodey Fund

Research Endowment Fund

Our research endowment supports the use of evidence from Ranken Jordan to show how Care Beyond the Bedside® improves outcomes for medically complex children. With fewer than 30 similar hospitals serving more than 700,000 children nationwide, it helps advance better standards of care and drive change across pediatric care.

- The Quatrano Family Fund for Research and Publications

Family Support Endowment

Families of children with complex medical needs need support that extends beyond hospital walls. The Family Support Endowment invests in innovative programs that help families thrive during their Ranken Jordan journey and after discharge, empowering our community to surround vulnerable children and their caregivers with lasting care, connection, and support.

- The Mary Ellen Brucker Transition to Home Fund

Yvonne and Joseph P. Logan Legacy Society Members

The Logan Legacy Society honors those who have made the thoughtful decision to support the children we serve though a planned gift. Their foresight and generosity will continue to inspire hope and healing for generations to come.
